Mark,

We are amenable to extending the schedule by an additional three weeks. We agree to the conditions you raise, with the clarification that the parties would jointly seek to amend the scheduling order without allocating blame to either side and predominantly citing the Magistrate's recent ruling, outstanding CP production, and other third-party depositions. But we will take the laboring oar on drafting and filing it. Regarding Kursman, is he available on any other dates other than 4/22? Lance has a long-scheduled deposition in another matter that day (his only other conflict after April 15 is April 27, when he has another deposition). Also, is Mr. Vachon possibly available any other dates before the new cut-off as well?

Thanks and have a good weekend,
Chelsea

[EXTERNAL]

Lance, we have discussed internally the current scheduling order. As mentioned, we thought the idea was that the current schedule would be the last and final scheduling order, with fact discovery ending on 4/15. Without allocating blame, we appreciate that it will be difficult to conclude all depositions by that deadline. We are amenable to another short extension of the present fact discovery deadline (say three weeks) providing (1) all other outstanding deadlines are similarly extended; (2) you can confirm that Lafave (if necessary), Garneau and Kursman are the last RFP witnesses to be deposed; (3) GP takes responsibility for seeking the amendment to the current scheduling order, without allocating blame for the extension on RFP; and (4) the CP documents can be produced Monday (instead of today). With respect to item (3), it seems like the Magistrate's recent ruling, the outstanding CP production and the unscheduled third-party depositions are good cause for an extension of the current deadlines.

Please let us know ASAP. If we can agree on the foregoing, we can also make Mr. Kursman available on 4/22, instead of next week. Thanks

Sorry, I am on my way to the airport for a flight back to NY from the west coast, so will be unavailable until this evening. I will have wifi on the plane so let's discuss by email, if that's ok with you.
